Praise Dance Workshop held

Let everything that hath breath praise the Lord.

Move Something Dance Workshop was held at the Manna From Heaven Dinner House in mid-January.

Classes began at 6:00 p.m. continued through 8:45 p.m.

The early sessions of the workshop consisted of:

What a great blessing! Manna From Heaven Dinner House is already being used to hold great events of a great variety. As a staple in the community we look forward to the impact that each event will have on the participants because there is ministry in all things that are done to glorify God. By using the gifts that God has given, we will continue to be available for those outlets.

“We all have to eat and manna from heaven is always good...never too salty, always sweet, never too bland, because of God’s great plan! Live your life with a full tummy when you find your purpose, you’ll find it’s yummy!”

Peace and blessings.

Praise & Worship for adults, Beginners Mime for youth, Advance Technique for adults and Hip Hop for youth.

The evening sessions were: Praise & Worship for youth, Weapons of Warfare/Pageantry, choreography I for adults, Advanced Mime for youth.

Every class had much to offer the students as they were taught under the leadership of Stacy Johnson, leader of the United Praise Dance Team from Alief, Texas.

Following the individual sessions, all students and workshop facilitators gathered together for an overview of the workshop.

Everyone participated in Weapons of Warfare as it pertains to dance and ministry. “There is a reason we use flags in dance,” said Johnson. Flags are used to prophecy and for warfare. It was explained how the flags are used to communicate through dance.

The facilitator said that it is extremely important for the “flags” to be held properly, and expressed properly.

The “Move Something” workshop was anointed. Alexis Speight from Sunday Best, came in to observe the final learning performance and she said, “I thank God and it feels good to see young people who love God as much as I do.”

A dream

William Dowlen portrays a funny, extremely uncouth character in the play, “The Missing Link,” Evangelist Johnson. As he seems to be naturally funny in his role portrayal, it is understandable that he is the “class clown” during his current tenure at Hillsboro High School, where he is a senior.

Dowlen has had prior experience with theater since fourth grade and while attending the Salama Performing Arts Program, he acted in two plays and several dance performances. Dowlen said, “I hope this play will entertain the audience as well as lend a life lesson in the importance of not straddling the proverbial fence when it comes to living for God.”

With his innate talent as an actor, William’s acting is only a means of “occupy his time.” His true desire is to obtain a Bachelor’s degree in Finance and go on to earn a Master’s Degree in Accounting.

Thus, having more than one talent that is done well, is not an obvious choice to others who see such an incredible actor. Yet, through his involvement with Youth About Business and DECA’s after school program, he will probably grow to become a great business man as well.

New Goals

I always set new goals.

From her role as Mabel in the play, “The Missing Link” spectators would not know that it was Ira Frierson’s first attempt at acting in a stage play. Although she has participated in a few skits her talent on stage was extraordinary.

Iru said, “The play’s message is universal and a lot of young people can identify with going to church in this setting. But, this is a humorous way of educating and it makes you reflect on yourself.”

“It was a new experience, rather exhilarating being around the cast who were warm-hearted and welcoming,” Frierson said.

Ira is a multi-talented person with many facets to her lifestyle. Currently she is a student at Nash-ville State Community College where she is studying Police Science. While she is awaiting her deployment in mid-summer of 2013 she also works in security, she is a bondsman (woman), and a beautician.

Iru will be a Naval Police in the United States Navy.

Iru is one of five sisters. She is one who sets a new goal each year to try something that she has never done. Last year her goal was fulfilled in her role as Mabel in “The Missing Link.”
